APPLICATION QUESTIONS (Limit responses to 150 words)

1. Why do you want to work for the Orient?

If it weren't for puzzles, I wouldn't be at Bowdoin. For as long as I can remember, I have gotten fulfillment out of connecting people, whether it be through humor or intellectual engagement. In high school, I did this by making crossword puzzles and school-themed NYT Connections games for my school newspaper, and in a separate newsletter that I would send out almost daily to various students and faculty. I loved the feeling seeing people work on my puzzles. It became a social activity for classmates, and I felt honored to be the one prompting this collaboration. To be part of an established group like the Orient is something powerful and fulfilling. I want to be part of a group that has a respected voice in the community, producing material that reinforces the respect it has.

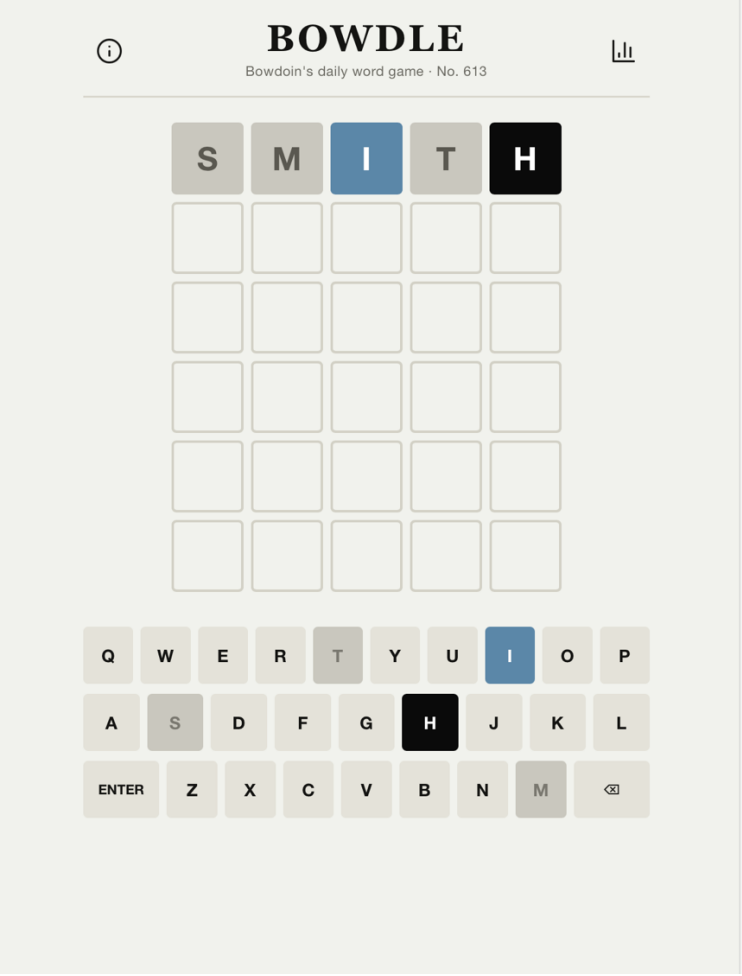

2. Do you have journalism experience? None is necessary to join but if so, please describe.

I worked for my high school's newspaper making puzzles and editing articles. I was also a member of the Orient last year.

3. If you are applying for our web staff or multimedia team, do you have experience with audio or video editing? If so, please describe.

I ran multiple social media accounts for my high school, including its newspaper account and several sports accounts. Since then, I have picked up video editing as a hobby. I have also taken web design courses in high school and have recently picked it up again while coding and designing the "Bowdle" below. I hope being on the web staff would help enhance my proficiency in this field.

I would also like to provide drafts of games I would like to potentially add to the Orient. Last year I applied hoping to make Bowdoin-themed NYT Connections style puzzles, and I heard that it was briefly discussed when I applied. I also talked with Shihab about adding it to the website, but it never came to fruition. Below are images of games I have been working on.
